The Roseifrons Conure (Pyrrhura picta roseifrons) was imported into the U.S. in the 1990's by two consortiums. This dainty and beautiful little parrot is still very rare, but its pet potential is excellent. It does not tend to be particularly nippy, though like other Pyrrhuras, it is "mouthy." The Roseifrons is an active, playful bird, inquisitive and friendly, as well as a very good swooping and acrobatic flyer.
